ON THE COVER

IS IT THE YEAR OF THE SHEEP, GOAT, OR RAM?

Nobody is quite sure due to the fact that the Chinese word 羊 (yáng) can refer to sheep, goat, ram/buck, or even antelope! Adding to the confusion is the fact that this word translates into "sheep" in Japan,

"goat" in Vietnam, and "ram" in Korea. However, experts on Chinese folklore argue that there is good evidence (in ancient pictures, statues, & customs) that suggest this truly is the Year of the Goat.

The baby goat on our cover was one of triplets born to a goat named Midnight. He's a Nubian - a dairy breed of goat with long floppy ears that are intelligent, curious, and just all-around charming! Colleen George always dreamed of having a farm, and as an adult dreamed of raising goats. One day she visited the goats at Hennigar's Farm Market and fell in love. Soon after, she contacted a local couple (Aaron & Tammy Levy) who breed Nubian goats. Goats are herd animals and shouldn't be kept alone or they'll get lonely and depressed. So Colleen took two of the gals,

Midnight and her half-sister Jewel, home to the bit of land that Colleen's partner helped her to fence in. Colleen thinks it's never too late to follow your dreams. "It's scary sometimes, and it's heartbreaking when something goes wrong, but through the ups and downs there is satisfaction in attempting something at middle-age that I dreamed about as a child."

WOLFVILLE'S DINING DILEMMA - AN INTERVIEW WITH MICHAEL HOWELL

by Genevieve Allen Hearn and Jeremy Novak

With the recent closure of Front & Central, the viability of an upscale restaurant scene in Wolfville has come into question. Michael Howell, former owner of The Tempest, former President of the Restaurant Association of Nova Scotia, and current President of Slow Food Nova Scotia, gave his insights on the state of the restaurant industry in our region.

Howell purports, "We've become a victim of our own success because the population hasn't grown as fast as the interest in creating business in cuisine here." He continues, "Also, I think that tourism has flat-lined in the past couple years, but that hasn't slowed down the increase in the number of restaurants that have opened up".

Dave Smart worked for Howell at The Tempest before he became the proprietor of Front & Central. Howell saw Smart as a worthy successor of a brand that took Howell ten years to develop. Front & Central was open for two and a half years and closed its doors at the end of 2014. "The haunting statistic," says Howell, "is that fifty percent of all restaurants fail within two years. I think that's a statistic that a lot of people opening a restaurant tend to ignore because they think that they can do it - that they have the resources or the skill or talent. I got here in 2002, since then there are five or six new restaurants in town, which is an increase of probably 25% of restaurants, but we haven't seen a twenty-five percent increase of customers. So think about that pie - it's just split ever thinner".

What's the solution? How can Wolfville attract new customers when population growth is sluggish? Howell thinks that attracting new customers is not solely the restaurateurs' responsibility.

This is a big thank you to all of the kindly neighbours, snowplow drivers and sidewalk plowers who have gone above and beyond to help keep our homes and communities accessible during and after our epic past snowstorms. You know who you are! Your kindness doesn't go unnoticed. I heard of a snowplow driver stopping to quickly rescue a local elderly couple trying to handle things on their own ("no charge, maam!"). And I want to give a big extra thank you to the plow driver and other driver who stopped to help push my vehicle out of my driveway when I'd gotten it stuck. You special helpful people all rock and bring a ray of sunshine to cloudy snowy days. Keep up the kind work and please know that we will all pass it on.

FEATURE CAT - PEDRO

Pedro is a black and white neutered short-haired male cat born Jan 22, 2007. He is brother to Pepsi. Their owner has passed away and a friend looked after them until we had room to bring them in here. It would have been ideal to be able to adopt them out together but Pepsi has been adopted already so we just need a home for this love bug. Pedro is a tad bit shy at first but is very loving. He is wearing a handsome tuxedo coat!

Because it's February 19, it's time to celebrate the Chinese New Year! The Chinese word 'yáng' refers to both goats and sheep/rams. According to the Chinese Zodiac, people born into this sign (1943, '55, '67, '79, '91, '03, '15) are known to be: tender, calm, wise, economical, and sensitive to art, beauty & faith. Of course you can't have the yang without the ying. It's also said that sheep are: shy, moody, weak-willed, puzzled about life, and hesitant to express love openly. Regardless of when you were born, what characteristics would you use to describe your business?...or, be creative and write a fortune cookie.

Oscar Gold Fever 2015

PROUDLY SPONSORING MIKE UNCORKED

16 Elm Avenue, Wolfville | 542.5307

the sweetness of doing nothing

By: Mike Butler

Hi Everyone! Well, it's another snowy day here in Wolfville and I am home with my computer writing a blue streak and included in my streaking (hee hee) are my Grapevine articles! I'm churning them out between trips outside to shovel! (Will the snow ever stop?)

I am a film buff and I get very excited for all the award shows, but the crowning glory is the Oscars. The Academy Awards ceremony, which airs on Sunday February 22nd, is like Christmas for me and I always look forward to this Mike Uncorked Oscar Gold Fever article. Want to do something fun on Oscar night? Well, you can watch the Oscars on the big screen at the Al Whittle Theatre in Wolfville. Put on your Oscar finery to be eligible for a door prize! Admission is free but please bring a donation towards screening costs. It was awesome last year! The Oscars will be broadcast immediately following the screening of *Mr. Turner* (nominated for Four Oscars!). The Academy Awards Ceremony starts at 9:30pm.

Here are my predictions for this year's Oscars:

BEST SUPPORTING ACTRESS: The Academy can sometimes throw a surprise winner our way in this category, but not this year folks. Patricia Arquette has cleaned up every other major award this season for her spectacular work in *Boyhood*, she is a fourth-generation actor who has paid her dues and she will walk away with an Oscar on the 22nd.

BEST SUPPORTING ACTOR: The winner of this category was also a no-brainer for me since I first saw *Whiplash*. J.K. Simmons' scene-stealing, demanding and exceptional performance is everything that screams Oscar. He's a safe bet on the 22nd!

BEST ACTRESS: After six previous nominations (including two in the same year) but no wins to her name, this year has belonged to Julianne Moore and she will win the Oscar for her beautiful performance of a fifty year old mother and wife who develops early Alzheimer's in *Still Alice*. Moore has always been brilliant but she shines in this film. This will be my WOO HOO moment of the night!

BEST ACTOR: I have loved Michael Keaton since 1988 when he played *Beetlejuice* but he has scored his greatest acting triumph this year with *Birdman* and I would love to see him walk home with an Academy Award. BUT the winner will be Eddie Redmayne for his jaw-dropping transformation into Stephen Hawking in the *Theory of Everything*. Reminiscent of Daniel Day-Lewis in *My Left Foot*, Redmayne embodies Hawking and it has Oscar written all over it.

BEST DIRECTOR: This is a tough category and it could make or break my perfect Oscar score but I have to go with the best work here and I think it was Richard Linklater for his genius construction and risky project *Boyhood*.

BEST PICTURE: I was scanning my predictions from previous years and you know what... I have guessed the Best Picture Oscar correctly every year since 1988 when *Rain Man* took home the Gold. So I feel very confident about choosing *Boyhood* as the winner! I love when the Academy Award for Best Picture actually goes to the best picture of that year and *Boyhood* certainly was that. It was a beautiful film and an incredibly precarious film-making endeavour but the director and cast pulled off an amazing cinematic feat!

OTHER CATEGORIES:

ADAPTED SCREENPLAY: The Imitation Game

ORIGINAL SCREENPLAY: Birdman

FILM EDITING: Boyhood

CINEMATOGRAPHY: Birdman

PRODUCTION DESIGN: The Grand Budapest Hotel

ANIMATED FEATURE: The Lego Movie... Oh wait! It got robbed of a nomination... I guess I'll pick How to Train Your Dragon 2

COSTUME DESIGN: The Grand Budapest Hotel

MAKEUP AND HAIR: The Grand Budapest Hotel

VISUAL EFFECTS: Interstellar

SOUND MIXING: Interstellar

SOUND EDITING: Interstellar

SONG: 'Glory' from Selma

SCORE: Theory of Everything

FOREIGN LANGUAGE FILM: Ida

Tune in to the Oscars and see how I did with my picks. Come to the Al Whittle and point and laugh at me if I made a mistake! Create your own ballot, invite friends over and admire the best dressed or poke fun at the worst dressed as Hollywood celebrates the best in film. Thanks Everyone!

He believes it's a challenge that should be addressed by the municipalities, the Department of Tourism, the Business Development Corporations, and the Regional Economic Development networks. He points to large community events such as the Devour! Food Film Festival and the Deep Roots Music Festival as economic drivers. Surveys showed that anyone who came to Devour for the day last year spent $91, and overnight attendees spent $250.

In order to maintain Wolfville's status as a restaurant destination, it's imperative that people, businesses, and organizations create dynamic tourism opportunities that attract visitors during off-peak seasons. Howell claims that November, January, February, and March are terrible months for restaurant traffic in Wolfville. It is no mistake that Devour takes place in November.

"For those five days we actually bring people into Wolfville who wouldn't otherwise have been there. Other people need to create events and opportunities for business so that our local restaurants are supported."

Events are just one part of the solution, however. Infill development in the downtown core would increase vibrancy and attract more professionals. "The town is desperately short of commercial space. In comparison to most Nova Scotian municipalities, it is grossly out of balance. We need more dentists and lawyers setting up offices... these places have employees that go out for lunch," Howell states.

As well, there are other ways that the town can complement the burgeoning restaurant and winery industry. Howell suggests a wine interpretive centre that serves as a gathering point for visitors and includes a merchant that carries all of the region's wine brands. He also suggests more interactive, hands-on agricultural activities for those who are looking for a unique, rural experience.

"Ultimately," Howell concludes, "we need to give people more reasons to stay in Wolfville rather than stopping for lunch and then moving on."

Rob Brezny's FREE WILL ASTROLOGY

*Copyright 2015 Rob Brezny
freewillastrology.com*

ARIES (March 21-April 19): There are many different facets to your intelligence, and each matures at a different rate. So for example, your ability to think symbolically may evolve more slowly than your ability to think abstractly. Your wisdom about why humans act the way they do may ripen more rapidly than your insight into your own emotions. In the coming weeks, I expect one particular aspect of your intelligence to be undergoing a growth spurt: your knowledge of what your body needs and how to give it what it needs.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): What is the proper blend for you these days? Is it something like 51 percent pleasure and 49 percent business? Or would you be wiser to shoot for 49 percent pleasure and 51 percent business? I will leave that decision up to you, Taurus. Whichever way you go, I suggest that you try to interweave business and pleasure as often as possible. You are in one of those action-packed phases when fun dovetails really well with ambition. I'm guessing that you can make productive connections at parties. I'm betting that you can spice up your social life by taking advantage of what comes to you through your work.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): In 1900, the world's most renowned mathematicians met at a conference in Paris. There the German whiz David Hilbert introduced his master list of 23 unsolved mathematical problems. At the time, no one had done such an exhaustive inventory. His well-defined challenge set the agenda for math research throughout the 20th century. Today he's regarded as an influential visionary. I'd love to see you come up with a list of your own top unsolved problems, Gemini. You now have extra insight about the catalytic projects you will be smart to work on and play with during the coming years.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): "Spanipelagic" is an adjective scientists use to describe creatures that typically hang out in deep water but float up to the surface on rare occasions. The term is not a perfect metaphorical fit for you, since you come up for air more often than that. But you do go through phases when you're inclined to linger for a long time in the abyss, enjoying the dark mysteries and fathomless emotions. According to my reading of the astrological omens, that's what you've been doing lately. Any day now, however, I expect you'll be rising up from the Great Down Below and headed topside for an extended stay.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): When faced with a big decision, you might say you want to "sleep on it." In other words, you postpone your final determination until you gather more information and ripen your understanding of the pressing issues. And that could indeed involve getting a good night's sleep. What happens in your dreams may reveal nuances you can't pry loose with your waking consciousness alone. And even if you don't recall your dreams, your sleeping mind is busy processing and reworking the possibilities. I recommend that you make liberal use of the "sleep on it" approach in the coming weeks, Leo. Revel in the wisdom that wells up in you as you're lying down in the dark.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): In 1962, Edward Albee published his play Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? It won numerous awards and is still performed by modern theater groups. Albee says the title came to him as he was having a beer at a bar in New York City. When he went to the restroom, he spied the words "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?" scrawled in soap on the mirror. I urge you to be alert for that kind of inspiration in the coming days, Virgo: unexpected, provocative, and out of context. You never know when and where you may be furnished with clues about the next plot twist of your life story.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Edward III, a medieval English king, had a favorite poet: Geoffrey Chaucer. In 1374, the king promised Chaucer a big gift in appreciation for his talents: a gallon of wine every day for the rest of his life. That's not the endowment I would have wanted if I had been Chaucer. I'd never get any work done if I were quaffing 16 glasses of wine every 24 hours. Couldn't I instead be provided with a regular stipend? Keep this story in mind, Libra, as you contemplate the benefits or rewards that might become available to you. Ask for what you really need, not necessarily what the giver initially offers.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): To make the cocktail known as Sex on the Beach, you mix together cranberry juice, orange juice, pineapple juice, peach schnapps, and vodka. There is also an alternative "mocktail" called Safe Sex on the Beach. It has the same fruit juices, but no alcohol. Given the likelihood that your inner teenager will be playing an important role in your upcoming adventures, Scorpio, I recommend that you favor the Safe-Sex-on-the-Beach metaphor rather than the Sex-on-the-Beach approach. At least temporarily, it's best to show a bit of protective restraint toward the wild and sometimes erratic juvenile energy that's pushing to be expressed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): In Herman Melville's short story "Bartleby, the Scrivener," a lawyer hires a man named Bartleby to work in his office. At first Bartleby is a model employee, carrying out his assignments with dogged skill. But one day everything begins to change. Whenever his boss instructs him to do a specific task, Bartleby says, "I would prefer not to." As the days go by, he does less and less, until finally he stops altogether. I'd like to propose, Sagittarius, that you take inspiration from his slowdown. Haven't you done enough for now? Haven't you been exemplary in your commitment to the daily struggle? Don't you deserve a break in the action so you can recharge your psychospiritual batteries? I say yes. Maybe you will consider making this your battle cry: "I would prefer not to."

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): "All life is an experiment. The more experiments you make the better." That's what American philosopher Ralph Waldo Emerson advised. Even if you're not naturally inclined to see the potential wisdom of that approach, I invite you to play around with it for the next three weeks. You don't need to do it forever. It doesn't have to become a permanent fixture in your philosophy. Just for now, experiment with the possibility that trying lots of experiments will lead you not just to new truths, but to new truths that are fun, interesting, and useful.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The art of the French Aquarian painter Armand Guillaumin (1841-1927) appears in prestigious museums. He isn't as famous as his fellow Impressionists Paul Cézanne and Camille Pissarro, but he wielded a big influence on them both. His career developed slowly because he had to work a day job to earn a living. When he was 50 years old, he won a wad of free money in the national lottery, and thereafter devoted himself full-time to painting. I'm not saying you will enjoy a windfall like that anytime soon, Aquarius, but such an event is possible. At the very least, your income could rise. Your odds of experiencing financial luck will increase to the degree that you work to improve the best gifts you have to offer your fellow humans.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): "It isn't normal to know what we want," said pioneering psychologist Abraham Maslow. "It is a rare and difficult psychological achievement." That's the bad news, Pisces. The good news is that you may be on the verge of rendering that theory irrelevant. In the coming weeks, you will be better primed to discover what you really want than you have been in a long time. I suggest you do a ritual in which you vow to unmask this treasured secret. Write a formal statement in which you declare your intention to achieve full understanding of the reasons you are alive on this planet.

HERE AND AWAY: "Minority" Populations

by Pamela Swanigan-Graves

Canadian figures are from a 2011 Statistics Canada survey, and refer to individuals who self-identify as members of a "visible minority" population. American figures are from 2013 census data, and refer to those who identify as other than "non-Hispanic white alone" (that is, not Hispanic white and not mixed-race). Note that both Canada and the United States apply the term "minority" to groups other than white even if they form the majority of the population. European figures refer to those identified as "other than European or White."

IB... A UNIQUE EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY

In the last two issues of The Grapevine I showcased two very unique features of the IB Diploma

Program – Creativity Activity Service (CAS)

and Theory of Knowledge (TOK). Today

I am highlighting the extended essay (EE). As with CAS and TOK, the EE is mandatory for all IB students and there is no public high school equivalent. Essentially, the EE is an independent, in-depth, self-directed research project producing a 4,000-word paper. It is intended to promote high-level research and writing skills, encouraging intellectual discovery and creativity. It provides students with an opportunity to not only engage in personal research but to also show their knowledge, understanding and enthusiasm about a topic of their choice, under the guidance of a supervisor (a teacher in the school). This leads to a major piece of formally presented, structured writing in which ideas and findings are communicated in a reasoned and coherent manner, appropriate to the subject chosen. The completion of the written essay is followed by a short debriefing interview, or viva voce, with the supervisor. The extended essay is assessed against common criteria, interpreted in ways appropriate to each subject. In those countries where it is the norm for interviews to be required prior to acceptance for employment or for a place at university, the extended essay has often proved to be a valuable stimulus for discussion.

Extended Essay workshops have taken place in the past at Horton and were led by Dr. William Barker. Dr. Barker is the former Vice President and Chancellor at Kings College in Halifax.

He did contract work for Harvard University and has also taught English Literature at Dalhousie University.

Dr Barker has been instrumental to the great success that Nova Scotia IB students have had with their extended essays.

Horton IB staff and former and current IB students, either directly or indirectly, have found these workshops to be an invaluable experience. A testimonial from a Horton IB graduate echoes these thoughts:

“...the extended essay was also a very effective way to introduce me to writing long, self-driven research papers - a skill that has saved me several hours of work in my first term alone. The extra time and effort I put into my studies during IB have been rewarded by the free time it has provided for me in university. I cannot stress enough how important essay-writing and presentation skills have been in my courses at UNB. I feel like they have been my most important asset coming out of IB, especially since there is no equivalent to the EE or the higher level English assessments in the standard NS curriculum. I have a huge advantage in my courses as a result of these skills.” – Isayah Vidito, BSc Engineering, UNB.

RECIPE | Baked Potato Soup

Stephane Levac, Frais Catering | 902-691-4706 | [frais catering.ca](http://frais catering.ca)

I always like to make soup with ingredients that you can find in your own pantry. I mean, who has the energy to head down to the grocery store, when you have to dig yourself out of three feet of snow? Forget the storm chips, hopefully this recipe will inspire you to look in your own fridge/pantry and create something delicious!

Baked Potato Soup

Makes 6-8 servings

Ingredients:

- 5lbs Russet Potatoes peeled and diced
- 1 Large Onion diced
- 3 Celery Ribs diced
- 6 Slices of Bacon sliced in ¼” pieces
- 8 Cups Chicken Stock
- 250ml Sour Cream plus a few tbsp.
- 250ml Heavy Cream
- Salt & Pepper
- Old Cheddar Cheese grated
- Green Onions sliced

Directions:

In a large stock pot, render bacon until brown and crispy. Remove half the bacon and reserve on a paper towel. Add celery and onions to the pot and cook until softened, about 5-7min. Add potatoes and chicken stock and bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer until potatoes have softened, about 45-50min. Remove from heat and season with salt and pepper. Stir in sour cream and heavy cream. With a hand held blender or blender, puree the soup until desired consistency. If you find that the soup is too thick, add a little more stock or water. Divide in soup bowls and garnish with reserved bacon, sour cream, green onions and serve.

WHAT'S GROWING AT THE HARRIET IRVING BOTANICAL GARDENS: Carnivorous Plants

Did you know that lurking beneath the snow in bogs all across Nova Scotia there are insect-eating plants just waiting for the spring bug season to begin? That's right we have carnivorous plants native to Nova Scotia. These highly intelligent plants get their nutrients from insects rather than soil as they grow in very low nutrient peat environments.

We have insectivorous pitcher plants and sundews growing in our bog at the Botanical Gardens. The pitcher plants sit and wait for their prey to fall into their watery traps, once the bugs are caught they can't crawl back out as there are tiny downward-pointing hairs on the inside of the pitcher or leaf blade that make climbing out impossible. The plants create an enzyme that breaks down the bodies of the insects allowing the nutrients to be available.

Sundews have their own trickery; they have a sticky substance on their leaves that act as traps. You'll have to wait until spring to see these clever native plants, however we also have a small collection of tropical carnivorous plants growing in our greenhouse, which can be viewed at any time.

The greenhouses are open to the public 7 days a week. For more information visit our website: botanicalgardens.acadiau.ca

ACADIA PERFORMING ARTS SERIES PRESENTS Symphony Nova Scotia On February 28

The Acadia Performing Arts Series presents Symphony Nova Scotia on Saturday, February 28 at 7:30pm at Convocation Hall, in the main administration building at Acadia University in Wolfville. Under the baton of Music Director Bernhard Gueller, the orchestra's feature piece is a Mendelssohn concerto for violin and piano with Terence Tam (violin) and Lorraine Min (piano).

After launching his career across Canada and around the world, former Symphony Nova Scotia concertmaster Terry Tam returns "home" for a rare joint performance with his wife and musical partner, pianist Lorraine Min. This accomplished couple takes on Mendelssohn's Double Concerto, a delightful work that showcases the composer's youthful vivacity and virtuosic talent. And, if you're longing for a bit of spring, Beethoven's "Pastoral" symphony, a warm and expressive journey through nature, is guaranteed to make you think of warmer temperatures and fields in bloom.

The WHO'S WHO:

Anne Mackinnon: Woman Without Borders!

By: Mike Butler

I consider myself extremely fortunate to have the ability to work in the retail field. I know many people who would give away their two thumbs to avoid ever having to work in retail but I, on the other hand, love it because I am very good at it. I chose retail because I would gladly give my two thumbs away to never have to work in any other field! In particular, I put doctors, nurses, and those working in the health care system, on a pedestal for their dedication, hard work, and attraction to a world I know I could never participate in. Anne MacKinnon gave me a deeper appreciation for that kind of hard work and this incredible woman is forever my hero.

says, "I remember sitting at the table with twenty-five other people from all around the world and thinking I was, for the first time, with like-minded people who wanted to go to the 'field' to help less fortunate people in countries that had conflict or natural and man-made disasters"

A side note: My life in retail (aside from our Kentville connection) brought Anne and me together when I sold her two of my favorite lamps during the time I was 'Lighting Store Mike'. When Anne and I sat down for our Grapevine chat recently, her beautiful house had those lamps (and many other wonderful pieces) in it. Oh the small world.... but back to the big world!

I am constantly floored by how small of a world we live in, how we're all connected somehow, and how we trickle in and out of each other's lives leaving little heart prints everywhere. Anne MacKinnon showed me both the small world and the large world connections we have. I am in awe of her work.

Anne MacKinnon grew up in Kentville. Her dad, Rocky Hazel, owned and operated the Valley Drive In and the Paramount Theater (these were staple places in my youth where I spent LOTS of my time and developed my love of film) so her Valley roots run deep. She went to Dalhousie University and received a Bachelor of Science in Nursing. Her very first job was in Neonatal intensive care at the IWK Hospital for Children where she would travel all over the Maritimes to pick up sick newborns. Hearing that right there made me automatically put Anne in a higher realm of super human.

After getting married, Anne worked in New Zealand for two years. On the way back home she traveled through Australia, South East Asia, Singapore, Hong Kong, Bangkok, Japan, and then took the Trans-Siberian railway for three weeks to Europe. This trip inspired her to travel abroad for the rest of her life. Anne eventually settled in Fredericton and raised three sons.

In the back of her mind, she had been harbouring a calling to do medical humanitarian work. After going on short stints to Haiti, she applied to the International Medical Humanitarian organization DOCTORS WITHOUT BORDERS (MSF). After being accepted, she went to Barcelona for a training program. She

Through MSF, Anne has been to India for six months, Liberia for two months, and Ethiopia for three months as well as Malawi for a tropical Pediatric course. Her stories of the living conditions, lack of resources, and the world she saw are both humbling and awe-inspiring. Saying that I am a better person by just knowing someone like Anne, who does this kind of work with sick and underprivileged children and their families, is a gross understatement.

And where has this work taken Anne, besides taking her to a higher state of gratitude for her own health and life? Well, Anne is now with the faculty of Nursing at Dalhousie University. She is also on the Board of Directors for Doctors without Borders Canada, which will include some travel in the near future. And with all the travelling Anne has done, she says this of life in Wolfville, "I am now back in the Valley and I'm so happy to be in Wolfville where I can do my running, play tennis, hike, bike, go to Absolute Health gym, ski, attend Fundy Films, go to the Performing Art Series, be with family and friends... Wolfville just has everything and its so beautiful in every direction."

Anne, thank you so much for your warmth and generosity in a field of work that requires so much mental, physical, and spiritual strength. I applaud your efforts and after sitting with you, chatting about life, love, and light (literally with the lamps) I am inspired and uplifted. You are a woman without borders! All my best!

A conversation with Amanda Ferguson & Lindsay Reid from The Rolled Oat Cafe

When did The Rolled Oat open?

We opened in July 2010 so this summer will be 5 years!

Why did you name it The Rolled Oat?

Naming a business is really hard. We didn't have a lot of time to come up with one so I called Lindsay and was like "k we need a name" and she just started saying all these names and we both liked The Rolled Oat.

What's your favourite recipe involving rolled oats?

Amanda - My favourite is our oatcakes. It's my mom's recipe. But the most popular is definitely our oatmeal chocolate chip cookies.

Lindsay - I also love our black bean and oat veggie burger

Why are you in business in Wolfville?

Amanda - I worked at the cafe that was in our spot before the Rolled Oat (The Vegetarian Lunchbox). It was a very spontaneous quick decision to take it over, so we didn't really choose Wolfville. It just happened.

Who eats at The Rolled Oat?

Everybody eats at the Rolled Oat! We have a unique range of customers and we're getting more and more students which is awesome.

Seeing as it's the Chinese New Year this week, what's the best Chinese recipe that you make?

Come in on Friday the 20th and we'll have something ready for you.

I'm not much of a cook, can recipes that call for lamb be easily substituted with ram or goat?

Amanda - I don't know. I've never cooked lamb, ram or goat. I'm not that into meat. Try the internet.

As there are four of you working at the cafe, what's the division of labour (who does what)?

There's only three of us there at one time. Lindsay and I do most of the cooking and all the baking. It's kinda like we all know what needs to be done so we just do it.

What's your most popular special?

Our pad thai.

Why aren't you open for supper?

We thought about it after we first opened, but now we have kids and it's nice to not have to work 10-12 hours a day.

Lindsay - The Rolled Oat is a big supporter of local artists. Our walls are covered with beautiful art (for sale) made by local artists and we sell CDs for many Valley musicians. Also we've been making a lot of specialty cake orders as people are seeing our baked goods on Facebook and Instagram.

AT THE BOOK FAIR IN HALIFAX last weekend the Atlantic Independent Bookseller's Association rallied together to attend the public information session regarding Nova Scotian tax reform; specifically to protest the recommendation to raise consumption taxes on printed books. We were by far the largest special interest group represented, and we took the opportunity to argue passionately against this proposal, which would generate paltry revenue and negatively affect our province's literary community. You still have until the end of February to voice your concerns about this, so get in touch with your MLA or write to taxreview@novascotia.ca and let our government know that we won't stand for taxing literacy.
